Class Poem

*We move a tapestry in four short years,
Threaded with sunlight, laughter and tears,
Toiled we to finish, each pattern complete,
Meeting hard tasks, conquering defeat.*

*Deep in our tapestry, woven with care,
Are patterns of buildings, and trees everywhere,
A church, a tower, brick walks, a brook,
Ivy and shadows—a quiet nook.*

*Graven in us, as the patterns we wove,
Are beauty and peace and things that we love.
We were the workers, and the weavers 'tis true,
Yet we wove ourselves memories of life's brightest hues.*

Class History

Yes'm, Lize Jane, dat sure was some 'lustrious class, dat dere Class of '33.

Way back in 1928 a whole bunch o' girls from mos' eberywhere made sorta invasion on dat dere Salem College. Dey didn't take de place by storm lak dose Egyptians did de Israelites—no mam, dey sorta settled peaceful lak, cause dey thought if dey malmagamated de customs of de Salemites dat dey would work dere way up to being de high lights and big chiefs. So dey bowed down to de Softmore court and did mo' anything anybody told 'em to. Any how, dey did show prowess, and under de leadership of Lyda Womelsdorf dey took dat Defficiency cup, de Soccer champeenship, and likewise de Basketball champeenship.

De nex' year dey done cast off dat ole name Freshman and took up dat one called Softmore. See I tells ye dey was already climbing dat ladder to supremacy. Den dey got up a court where dey tried new invaders and dey had justice de lak o' which ain't ne'er been seen. I guess dey tho't t' would be sorta de thing to do to help de higher classes, so dey helped wid de vespers, acted as—what is it now, er—sure, dey acted as pages. Dey helped dem Seniors burn de hats and plant de ivy. But spring fever set in and since dey was scared their forces might get unpared, dey went into summer quarters.

De nex' fall, it found dem hearty and feeling big, and dey did great things by der leaders, Irene McAnally and Mary B. Williams. On'y thar was one thing—a terrible sumpin' called de repression settled down on de land; 'twas nothin' befo' to equal it. Not eben de plagues ob the Israelites. Ob coursens de Seniors dey tho't de Juniors wouldn't habe no entertainment for 'em. But de Juniors, 'lustrious as eber, showed jes how pow'ful dey was. Dey got der rings and gave dem der Seniors de time 'f der lives at de Country Club place. Well, by spring dey decided to go into dat summery seclusion so's to draw up de plans for de nex' year o' triumphin'.

Dat der yeah, '32-'33, was sure what ye call de Golden Age." 'Til den I didn't know what dat meant. I knows dat is one shinin' 'zample. Mary Katherine Thorp lead her campaign wid a plenty o' energy. An' b'lieve me, Mary Catherine Siewers and Mary B. Williams sho' did do der part an' do it lak it orta be, too. De publicashuns were de mos' newsiest wif de all powerful aid ob Josephine Courtney and Lou Brinkley. My lauwd, how ye think I can mention all de 'luminous names of dem Seniors.

Any how, wif hat burn', vespers, practice teachin', parties, an' receptions and all dat, dey reached de big day. Since dey reached de peak o' power, dey took dose dar diplomas and started out fur new worlds to conquer.

ELEANOR PHILLIPS, Historian.

Uncle Remus Ruminates

On the slope near the old willow tree sat Uncle Remus, his gnarled stick clasped between his wrinkled, chocolate-colored hands, which now were idle. Age had treated his once shining black skin as it does the bark of a stalwart oak, and it had turned the kinky, black wool of his hair to a crown of tufted cotton. The old man basked in the warm, spring sunshine, vaguely aware of the buzzing, lazy comfort which comes with the first warm days. A dog, sniffing along the walk from Clewel, stopped to look at Uncle Remus, but the negro never ceased his meditations.

Suddenly he felt two warm, little hands clasped tightly over his eyes, and a stiff organdie ruffle edged against his neck.

"Hi-yi!" cried Uncle Remus, dropping his stick. Over his face spread a broad grin. "Who dat blin' my eyes?"

A delicious, dainty laugh answered him, and the stiff organdie collar rubbed up and down. "Guess!"

"Whee-ee!" he whistled. "It mought be a butterfly, or it mought be Miss Katy-did comin' fer to call, but it 'pears to me lak ain't nobody wif sof' li'l hands lak Miss Mary Louise."

The hands dropped from his eyes, and before him danced little Miss Mary Louise, like a bit of sunshine, dressed in a yellow frock with white organdie trimmings.

"Chile, chile, dar you is," cackled Uncle Remus. "When anybody gits ter be a himbly-hombly year ol', dey ain't no need ter skeer 'em." His eyes gleamed with merriment.

Petite Miss Mary Louise seated herself on the grass beside Uncle Remus, looked into the weather-beaten face that had harbored so many smiles, and allowed her head to fall against the old negro's shoulder. She was satisfied. The movement was as familiar to Uncle Remus as sunny cotton fields, for among the children that he had known well, not one had failed to lay his head where that of the little girl now rested.

"What were you thinking about?" she asked.

"Honey, I was a-ponderin' 'bout de days since I lef' Miss Sally's an' come to live at Salem College. 'Tain't been more'n four year come nex' blackberry pickin', but it do seem lak I b'longs to de school. Ain't it so, honey?"

"I can't remember when you weren't here, Uncle Remus," she replied affectionately.

"Das so, honey, an' skasely kin I. These Ravyuns is good folks an' moughty fine to Remus. De college gals deyselves is turr'ble up-an'-comin'. I jes wisht

I could see 'em when dey out in de world a-pilin' up glory an' riches. You'll ese 'em, chile, an ever las' one uv 'em gwine make you pleased you knows 'em."

Mary Louise interrupted, "There go Emily Mickey and Josephine Walker."

"To be sho'," he nodded. "Miss Emily an' Miss Jo. Watch 'em argufyin'. Some ob dese days Miss Emily gwine do her argufyin' afore de oder ambassadors in Europe, an' Miss Jo. gwine speak English fer 'Fessor Einstein."

"Now, you take Miss Emily's sister, Miss Mary Louise, what thinks she gwine teach music. She ain't no more gwine teach dan I's gwine play de orgin. She gwine write a 'stoundin' book dat'll set dis here nation to gabbin', an' she liable ter walk off wid de big Johnson Prize, what Miss Margaret give to de bes' writer in de country. 'Sides dat, she give a prize fer writin' de bes' music, an' bless my soul, if Miss Tommye an' Miss Rosalie don' win it."

"You see dose two gals yondah—a big one and a li'l one? Dey bothers me, kase I cain't seem to figger whether Miss Babe gwine be a sublime poet or 'nother Miss Kate Smith over de radio. One thing sho, hosumever, Miss Naomi gwine trail Miss Babe froo dis worl' an' de nex', an' efen she write poerty, Miss Naomi gwine copy it down, an' efen she sing songs, Miss Naomi gwine hold her golden train."

"Dat li'l Miss Mary B.—watch her, now, a-wavin' so cheerful-lak—couldn't help singin' no more'n a meadowlark. She boun' to show off dat golden voice. I's thinkin' dat she gwine sing on de ocean in a great big ship fo' de benefit ob de passengers. Miss Wanna Mary 'low she leave her fambly a li'l while an' play fo' Miss Mary B. ter sing. Like as not she gwine ferget her trunk an' haf to borry Miss Mary B.'s clothes."

"Not if Louise Brinkley were there to take care of her," declared Mary Louise.

"Right you is, honey. Mebbe Miss Lou gwine 'cide to go 'long dat same trip. She got plenty money fo' ter do so ef she wanter, 'count ob publishin' books in Atlanta. She gwine own a big book fact'ry."

"What makes you think so, Uncle Remus?" asked the little girl, puzzled.

"Ain't 'at what she doin' now?" he asked, as Louise ran up the brick steps in pursuit of Ghilan. "Now, you take dat stylish Miss G'lan. She gwine work herself to death learnin' to be a clothes buyer for a store, an' den she turn right aroun' an' not buy nuffin' 'sides her own finery to git married."

"What is Mary Katherine Thorp going to be?" asked Mary Louise.

"Who—you mean Miss Katie? Lawsy, she sho' ter be a doctor, what wif her win'-ter-all you-meetness. Miss Nancy Ann orter call on her for to cure de nervous breakdowns ever time she get through a big stage recital. Lawsy, dat girl! Now, dat other Miss Mary Catherine—"

Sights and Insights

"I know," interrupted Mary Louise. "She will be a college professor like Dr. Willoughby."

"Not so's you'd know it, ma'am. Mebbe she start out wid some such notion, but long come Miss Jo. what prints de newspapers, an' make her out so famous dat Miss Mary C. lan' square in Hollywood an' turn out ter be de queen uv movin' pitchers."

"But, Uncle Remus, I always thought Billy Philpott would be the wovie queen."

"Reckon she will start in dat direction, but time she start 'cross de country to California, she gwine git stopped in Texas at a ranch, an' firs' thing you know, she is missus ob it. Think ob that! Spos'n' Miss Billy walk out calm-like on her front po'ch one day an' behol' in de sky a big airplane, an' out o' dat plane come a paremshoot headin' straight fo' her cawn field, she mought's well know dat am Miss Tildy an' Miss Nina Way droppin' in frum stunt flyin' ter say howdy."

"Yon come Miss Ruth Crouse, flashin' dat diamon' ring in de sun. Pears lak to me she gwine be a class party-giver, whut wid her heaps ob money. She'd do well ter call on de swell catrisses, Miss Liz Correll an' Miss Frances Mendenhall. Mebbe she give a party fo' Miss Mary Ada soon as she strike a gold mine.

"Looky! dar Miss Pauline Setzer a-givin' Mr. Campbell to understan' dat he bou'n' ter take a book back to Miss Siewers' library. Don' he look sheepish? Time ain' fur off when all de men gwine rush like dat, kase de women am takin' de government. Even de school superintendents gwine be women—leastways, Miss Setzer gwine be one. Den Miss Elinor Phillips up an' write pieces in magazines fur de benefit ob de strugglin' he-politicians, tryin' to git a li'l say-so in de she-run government.

"Looky, Uncle Remus!" cried Mary Louise. "Is that lady a French woman? She's talking French."

"You mought easy think so, honey. Dat's Miss Mary Lillian spealin' away de parley-voos. She gwine start up a French store on Fifth Avenue and sell de Price-less Price creations. I seen 'em on de bulletin board back ob Main Hall."

"Doesn't that girl have pretty hair!" exclaimed the little girl admiringly.

"Dat Miss Louise Sides wid her crownin' glory. She mought make a fortune some day inventin' a everlastin' permanent wave.

"Yondah Miss Noobie an' Miss Shocky, like usual talkin' 'bout de chillen dey teach. Miss Noobie am likely ter hab a kindergarten, an' Miss Shocky done tol' me she gwine draw a picture book for Miss Noobie named Br'er Rabbit's Bunnies. I 'low as how Miss Mabel Reid use date same book when she teach down in Pamana.

"Those gals comin' yondah, Miss Eugenia Johnson an' Miss Emma Kapp, jes' a-gigglin', dey gwine scatter sunshine to de heathen, bless der hearts! De oder Miss Johnson, Miss Mae, am headed for dis all-American Hockey Team I hear Miss At talk about.

"Missus Wells, her whyt married de school teacher, properly gwine teach French, kase she like ter talk it. 'Nother French specializer am Miss Louise Mock, whut feel called on an' moved by de spirit to write a French lesson book."

"See dat gal gwine in de do'? Dat's Miss Carolyn Miller. She gwine hab charge ob de kitchen end ob some hospital. Whut if Miss Mildred Coleman drap in frum a wreck atter one ob her frequent trips! How come she don't run a bus line 'tween here an' Chapel Hill?"

"De Latin student am Miss Dorothy Sims. She gwine—leastways she oter—write all de Latin translations in a book for ter be used by de people whut cain't read so good as her. You calls it a Latin jack.

"Miss Mary Louise," said the old man, as she suddenly lifted her head from his shoulder, "do be calm. Dat gal whut's balancin' a feather on her nose am Miss Dorothy Heidenreich. Watch her hol' it straight! Ef she kin do that, she kin keep right on 'till she end up balancin' de United States budget."

"Ise froo projekin, honey," announced Uncle Remus. Slowly he lifted his stiff limbs from the grass, took the little girl's hand in his, and hobbled in the direction of his cabin.

*Junior Class,
We just won't let them pass—
We've got that mighty line
That ever makes time.
We've got those
Three weak and sissy foes
Who have such silly lines,
And lousy backs,
That they can't even play Rick Rack.
Come on team,
Let's show them what we mean
When we are out to win the games
For the mighty and the swellest of all names,
Rah! Rah! for the Junior Class.*

ILLUSION: Girl rises into air and floats apparently suspended. Magician passes a hoop around body to show there are no supports.

Copyright, 1933, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company

EXPLANATION: There are many explanations for this old trick. One is that the girl wears a concealed harness, which ends in a socket between her shoulder blades. This is attached to a piston pushed up from below, causing her to rise in air. The piston is invisible. Magician can pass hoop over her body because it is cut in one place. It can be pulled apart as it passes the piston.

It's fun to be fooled — ..it's more fun to KNOW

Another "magic show" is cigarette advertising. One of its greatest tricks is the illusion that cigarettes can be made miraculously "MILD" through manufacturing methods.

THE EXPLANATION: All popular cigarettes today are made in modern, sanitary factories with up-to-date machinery. All are heat treated—some more intensively than others, because raw, inferior tobaccos require more intensive treatment than choice, ripe tobaccos.

The real difference comes in the tobaccos that are used. The better the tobacco, the milder it is.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

LOOKING for YOUTH ?

ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S mother died at the age of 37—an old woman, worn out from the hardships of the frontier. She was not an isolated case. There were thousands of others like her.

Hard, physical labor robbed her of health and beauty—made her old before her time.

Strange as it may seem, even in this electrical age, there are countless homes where, except for lighting, the work is being done just as it was in the frontier days. The women of the house are still wasting their health and time doing tasks that electricity can do for them at a very small cost.

Electricity will do your washing and ironing with a minimum of effort on your part; it can help with the cooking and cleaning. There is hardly a household task that it cannot make easier, or do for you.
